

Direct Sow Flowers

Direct sowing is a wonderful option for flowers that are often too delicate to transplant, such as nasturtiums and zinnias. Flora Garden Society carries hundreds of direct sow seeds that you can plant directly into your garden, so there is no need to worry about the shock that often occurs from transplanting your seedling or start. We carry a full range of flower seeds that will provide you with a lush garden full of blooms in all shapes, sizes, and colors.

Planting direct sow flowers can be a little intimidating for beginning gardener. It's important to take into account the cultural requirements of your seeds before you plant. The wrong conditions could leave you seeds that refuse to germinate. For the best results, seeds should start off in a garden bed free of weeds, with soil that has been prepped with nutrient rich compost. Seeds can be strewn about or planted in rows, depending on the design of your garden. Some seeds may require sunlight to germinate, while others should be planted approximately three times as deep as their circumference. Most seeds prefer to be grown in moist soil, as there is no root system to prevent seeds from drying out quickly. Watering can be scaled back once plants have become established.
