Flowering Bulbs

From lilies to tulips, flowering bulbs are a garden staple. Flora Garden Society stocks both summer and fall bulbs, so you can enjoy beautiful blooms year-round. Bulbs are among the easiest flowers to grow, and produce vibrant colors that span the rainbow. We are proud to offer the best selection of bulbs available, and carry many different species of daffodils, tulips, lilies, and other flowering bulbs.

Winter bulbs like daffodils, crocus, and tulips are considered winter hardy, meaning they can be planted in the fall and bloom in the spring. Some winter bulbs will only produce flowers for a single season. These bulbs should be dug up and discarded at the end of summer. Most spring bulbs, such as amaryllis and caladiums, will produce blooms again and again. Spring bulbs are more sensitive to temperature. Once fall creeps in, spring bulbs need to be carefully dug up. Bulbs should be stored in a cool, dry place until temperatures warm up and the ground thaws. If you take care to save and store bulbs properly, they are an economical flower choice and will last for years to come.

Direct Sow Flowers

Direct sowing is a wonderful option for flowers that are often too delicate to transplant, such as nasturtiums and zinnias. Flora Garden Society carries hundreds of direct sow seeds that you can plant directly into your garden, so there is no need to worry about the shock that often occurs from transplanting your seedling or start. We carry a full range of flower seeds that will provide you with a lush garden full of blooms in all shapes, sizes, and colors.

Planting direct sow flowers can be a little intimidating for beginning gardener. It's important to take into account the cultural requirements of your seeds before you plant. The wrong conditions could leave you seeds that refuse to germinate. For the best results, seeds should start off in a garden bed free of weeds, with soil that has been prepped with nutrient rich compost. Seeds can be strewn about or planted in rows, depending on the design of your garden. Some seeds may require sunlight to germinate, while others should be planted approximately three times as deep as their circumference. Most seeds prefer to be grown in moist soil, as there is no root system to prevent seeds from drying out quickly. Watering can be scaled back once plants have become established.

Roses

Roses of any kind make a wonderful and fragrant addition to home gardens. Flora Garden Society roses are well known for their delicate beauty, long life, and fragrant blooms. There are hundreds of species of roses, many of which can be found in our catalog. It is no wonder that roses are the most popular flower in the world. Flora Garden Society roses are hardy and healthy plants. We are committed to carrying a wide-ranging selection, the newest hybrids, as well as tried and true varieties.

Roses are woody perennials, with shrubs ranging in size from miniature bushes to climbing varieties. Although roses are primarily used for their ornamental value, gardeners often plant large rose bushes to function as hedges or ground cover. To ensure a long life, plant roses in an area that receives full sun, especially in the morning hours. This way, any dew that accumulates overnight will dry early. For best results, rose bushes should be planted in well-drained soil and fertilized immediately after planting.

Bedding Flowers

No other flower provides as much beauty and bang for your buck as bedding flowers. Flora Garden Society offers hundreds of bedding flowers in every shape, color, and size. Flora Garden Society carries both annual and perennial bedding flowers, with your choice of seed or transplant. Bedding plants are versatile, and will be a vibrant addition to your garden, hanging baskets, or yard border.

Most of our bedding flowers require full sun. Seedlings and transplants should be acclimated to outdoor conditions before being planted outside. The easiest way to transition bedding flowers is to leave them outside for a few days prior to planting. Growing bedding flowers from seed requires a little time and patience, but the process can be more cost effective in the long run. Adding liquid fertilizer will encourage new growth in both seeds and seedlings. The majority of bedding flowers need ample moisture and should be watered daily in the summer. Removing dead or damaged flowers is crucial to encouraging new growth and additional blooms.

Planting and Planning for Spring

Our Secret Garden

It's no secret the FGS garden at the San Luis Obispo, California headquarters draws thousands of visitors each year. Nestled in one of the "Happiest Cities in America," the FGS flagship garden is truly a wonder to behold.

When FGS first launched in 1950, the goal of the founding members was to inspire others by creating a lush and beautiful garden full of grandeur. The grounds consist of eight sprawling acres located minutes from the FGS office building in downtown San Luis Obispo.

The FGS garden is divided into four smaller gardens: the Native Garden, Orchard, Formal Garden, and Testing Garden. The Native Garden boasts over 50,000 different species of plants that are native to the region. The Orchard is filled with dozens of varieties of apple, peach, orange, lemon, and fig trees.

Five years ago, FGS developed a “you pick” program in San Luis Obispo, allowing visitors to fill baskets full of seasonal fruit. True to form, the Formal Garden is lined with large symmetrical hedges that flank a French rose garden. The layout took several years to design and has been preserved since the headquarters opened. The Testing Garden is the pride and joy of FGS horticulturists. Inside, scientists test new hybrid plants and experiment with cutting-edge fertilizers. These four gardens combined offer a taste of history with a hint of the future of gardening. 🌿

Spring Planning Guide

*"A little preparation
can go a long way towards growing a lush and plentiful garden. Do your homework before you dig."*

Jon Summers

Spring has finally sprung, and you have decided to plant your first garden—but where to begin? That’s where Jon Summers comes in. Summers is Flora Garden Society’s expert horticulturist, and he’s starting off with the basics for what you need to know before you start planting.

Growing your own garden is an exciting and rewarding process. A successful garden takes careful planning and patience. Taking the time to do a little research will help ensure the plants you choose will be healthy and beautiful.

The type of soil you plan to use will determine which plants and flowers grow best in your garden. Most plants need well-drained soil to thrive. To test your soil, begin by digging a 1 foot hole. Fill the hole with water, and let the water drain out. Then, refill the hole again. Wait 15 minutes then measure (in inches) how much the water has dropped. Multiply that figure by 4 to calculate how much the water drops in an hour. Less than 1 inch per hour indicates poor drainage, and you will need to choose plants that are able to tolerate wet soil for long periods of time. The optimal drainage time for most plants is 1 to 6 inches per hour. If your water drains more than 6 inches in an hour, you may want to choose drought-resistant plants for your garden.

Before you select flowers to plant in your garden, you will need to take into account the amount of sun your garden receives. Different plants require varying amounts of sun exposure. The amount of sun an area is exposed to can be categorized into three groups. Full Sun receives 6 or more hours of direct sunlight, Partial Sun/Partial Shade receives 3-6 hours of direct sun, and Full Shade receives less than 3 hours of sunlight.

By doing background work first, you can feel confident in the flowers you choose to grow. Always look at the needs of each plant before you buy to determine the best fit for you! 🌱

Our Top Picks for Spring

Dahlia

There are over 35 species of dahlias, which are native to Mexico, Central America and parts of South America. Dahlias are closely related to the sunflower, daisy, and zinnia. Dahlias are grown from tubers, which are underground shoots or stems. Tubers should be planted in the spring, after the ground has warmed from the winter. Dahlias can grow quite tall, so take care to anchor a stake to support the plant as it grows. These plants prefer occasional deep watering, as opposed to frequent light watering. Take care not to over water, as too much moisture may cause tubers to rot. To encourage larger blooms, gardeners often practice disbudding, which is the removal of the two outer flower buds that grow at the end of each dahlia branch.

Parrot Tulip

There are several different varieties of parrot tulips, ranging in color from blues to reds to whites. Parrot tulips were developed for their curly, twisted, or waved petals. These unique flowers are part of the Triumph class, and a result of blending different varieties of late-flowering tulips. Parrot tulips should be planted in an area with well-drained soil that receives full sun. Do not plant in a windy area, as these plants are relatively fragile. Bulbs should be planted in the early fall, and will bloom in mid-spring. Parrot tulips should be watered once a week between spring and fall months. Bulbs can be dug up and saved after blooms have died in early summer.

Daffodil

Daffodils, also known as narcissus, are native to Europe, North Africa, and West Asia. Botanists estimate between 26 to 60 different species of daffodils, not including hybrid versions. Daffodils grow from bulbs, which should be planted in the spring. Big, heavy bulbs are the most likely to produce large flowers. If bulbs are too light, they might have already suffered damage by insects or disease. Daffodil bulbs should be planted in well-drained soil. These plants prefer full sun and need to be watered frequently. Daffodil bulbs can be left in the ground between 3 to 5 years. To replant bulbs, cut foliage when it begins to turn yellow. Dig up bulbs and wash and dry thoroughly. Bulbs should be stored in a cool, aerated location until they are ready to be planted again.

Freesia

Freesia is an herbaceous flowering plant, native to Africa. There are about 16 different species of freesias. Flowers range from white to blue to yellow, and are very fragrant. Many gardeners love incorporating freesias into their flowerbeds, as they are easy to grow and require little maintenance. Freesias should be planted in areas that receive full sun. Wait until the winter frost is over to plant freesia bulbs. Bulbs should be pointed up, and spaced at least eight inches apart. Cover each bulb with at least one inch of soil. Once freesias flower, they should be watered frequently; however, watering should be scaled back once the blooms die. Bulbs can be dug up in the fall, and stored in a dry place until the spring.
